DECALOGUE OF WISE ECOLOGY

- I Remember humbly, that the Earth and its Creatures have been given to you in custody by God so that you may live, know, share and love praising the Lord.
- II Obey the laws of Nature selflessly. Get to know them, enforce them with respect, to the eternal laws of Universal Ethics.
- III The Earth with all its Creatures is your sole environment: you have not been given any other. Commit yourself to make sure that the government you elect never forgets this.
- IV Base your behaviour on respect for Nature in every occasion and educate your children in the same manner.
- V Work so that your behaviour and that of society respect life in all its forms. Your actions should take heed of every living species.
- VI Don't pollute the air, water and soil. Demand that production and progress happen exactly along the lines of acceptable development.
- VII Safeguard with your work among other man the Nature you have been given. Separate and recycle waste.
- VIII Don't consume unnecessarily, so that your fellow men can share in the benefits of Nature.
- IX Don't delegate to others what you can do yourself. Don't ever forget that to love God and love your neighbour is the most important commandment.
- X ...(SORELLA NATURA ... simply wants to give you nine points on which to meditate in the name of St. Francis of Assisi, for your relationship and commitment to Nature. May the tenth point be suggested by your personal experience)...
